

NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

The NEW-YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every MORNING (SUNDAYS EXCEPTED) At The Tribune Buildings, corner of Spruce and Nassau streets, opposite the City Hall, and delivered to City Subscribers for 12 1/2 Cents per week; or, when they prefer, for advance at the Desk for six months of a year, at the same rate. The Desk will receive payment in Advance, and will pay Five Dollars per month in Advance. Subscriptions taken for six months. For three months $1.50. Three Dollars advance required in all exchanges with Correspondents, and for receiving their communications. Terms are higher than those of The Tribune, are not allowed any difference.

All Advertisements inserted in this paper appear both in the Morning and Evening Editions.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE

is published every Wednesday and Saturday morning Price 50 cents per copy.

NEW-YORK WEEKLY TRIBUNE

A very large PAPER FOR THE COUNTRY, is published every Saturday Morning at the low price of $1 per copy, and is sent to New-York for $1.50 per copy to one address, for $2, and the paper to no place contained beyond the time for which it is paid.

GREELEY & McELRATH, Publishers.

NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

Delegates to the Whig State Convention. Kings Co.—Dist. 1. THOMAS H. REDDING; 2. BENJ. J. WARDWELL; 3. PETER G. TAYLOR.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

Commander of the Washington Navy Yard.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Aug. 20.

Commodore Ballard has been assigned Commander of the Washington Navy Yard, commencing on the 1st of October.

Maine Election.

BOSTON, Thursday, September 29.

It is ascertained that the Lone Foxes will have a majority in both branches of the Maine Legislature.

Ship News.

SALINAS, 16th—Arr., schr Mary Ballad, San Francisco, schr Mary Ballad, San Pedro, Alameda, NEW-BEDFORD, 19th—Arrived, bark Tremont, Philadelph., for Boston, brigs Hyatt, Denmark, A. & J. Holmes, bark Adair, bark Franklin, bark and cables, do for do, bark do, for Portsmouth; schr Nantucket, Governor, Adelie, Handaler, Advance, Mary H. Chapman, bark Tybee, bark and cables, do for Boston; Asaph, Mather, Monterey, and Esopus, do for Boston; Senator, Newark for do; H. Carter, and Harp, Richmond, for do; I. O. F. Norfolk for Portland; New-York, and bark and cables, do for do; bark and cables, do for Weymouth; Genl Boyd, do for Seaford; Mary E. Bach, do for Dighton; C. D. Brooks, do for Newburyport; Augustus, North for do; SARAS, NY for Port-land; bark and cables, do for do; SARAS, NY for Port-land; bark and cables, do for do.

WAREHAM Sept. 16—Arr., schr Sarah Louisa, and ap Apollo, New-York, 17th, schr Benj Brown, do, Nots, Nantucket, November, 18th, schr Robt.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 16—Arr., schr Express, Rappahannock Union, and bark Baltimore, Nineteen, and Schr. 17th, bark and cables, do for do; bark and cables, Albany; Mary Heien, and Merchant, Dr. Stevens, do for Adams, Norfolk; Capt. May, Shean-dash, and cables, Philad., Superior, Bond, ship Victoria, New-York.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 17—Arr., bark Quincy, Charlton for do; do.

NEWPORT, Sept. 18—Arr., schr F. A. Hawkins, Phila.

Hunker defining its Position.

The Albany Argus thus states its view of the last Syracuse muster, and its belongings. The reader will judge for himself; but it seems to us that the view taken of the effect of the Syracuse doings is just and sound one:

"With regard to the Syracuse mass meeting, we do not deny the right of the slaves to meet. Their professed object was union, and so far as they concerned us, they embraced, with a few law exceptions, they embraced all the rights of the slaves. Their organization being present, and not to exceed a dozen of that organization taking any part in the proceedings. The Democrats of that organization had avowed their position at Rome and at Syracuse, upon that they stand, and directed chiefly by delegates from the Utica Convention, while they could if they chose, revive and present the Slavery question in such manner as was most congenial to their own views, could not, and did not pretend to speak for the Democracy of the State, as the Utica Free Press represents, of 'bold sections of the party.'

The desire of the Democratic masses is union. This is the great scope and object of the union or combined ticket." Both divisions have declared their positions upon the Slavery question, and can hardly be expected to be divided. The whole question, however, is more Democratic than the position taken unanimously by the Democratic State Convention at Rome, and unanimously reaffirmed by the State Nominating Convention at Syracuse—a position which, we are told, was due entirely to the influence of the Utica Convention, and not to be denied.

Any further attempts to litigate the Slavery question, will only serve to irritate and distract, and weaken the bond of union, which, if strengthened by the avoidance of irritating topics and groundless claims of concession of either side, can scarcely fail to lead to fortunate and successful results.

The Poussin Difficulty.

The Courier & Enquirer corrects its account of its slue-up by the North American's express, as follows:

"We find in the Philadelphia North American, a letter from the well known Washington correspondent of that paper, giving an account of the capture of the French Minister's大使, ergo, all slaveholders are safe."

"We find he had run up the reefs of El Rozo near the Island of Salmedino in the Gulf of Mexico, and signified to Capt. C. for assistance. The refusal to pay the salvage which he claimed, was based, as we understand, upon the legal point that the salvors were due extra expense, and although the Eugenio had been captured, it would not be necessary thrust forward.

Any further attempts to litigate the Slavery question, will only serve to irritate and distract, and weaken the bond of union, which, if strengthened by the avoidance of irritating topics and groundless claims of concession of either side, can scarcely fail to lead to fortunate and successful results."

NEW-YORK DAILY TRIBUNE.

BY GREELEY & McELRATH.

OFFICE, TRIBUNE BUILDINGS.

PRICE TWO CENTS.

VOL. IX. NO. 141.

WHOLE NO. 2632.

M. Poussin, the French Minister. Correspondence of The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19, 1849.

M. Poussin, the French Minister, arrived here this morning from the North. He will stay a few days and return to New-York, where he intends to reside until he receives instructions from his Government as to the course he is to pursue in the affair of his repudiation by this Government as Minister Plenipotentiary of France.

Mr. Poussin in his correspondence with the Secretary of State, I have reason to believe, had not the slightest intention of creating offence, but, implying that he was free, and feeling that in the shipwreck of a vessel, he was under the circumstances, which demanded the release of Commander Carpenter, salvage ought not to be demanded, he wrote warmly on the subject, and whether indirectly or not, must be decided by the publication of the official correspondence, which will probably not take place until Congress meets. The Government of France seems to be content with the part its Representative has taken.

It is my hope that a reconciliation will be effected between the two nations in this matter, so that Mr. Poussin may be allowed to go home.

I am a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be shipped to France free or nearly so of duty, and that our Cotton, &c., may also be sent upon a more liberal scale, which evinces a liberty of feeling consonant with the spirit of the age, as well as a zealous regard for the interests of our country, because none can doubt that such a recognition would conduces to the prosperity of both nations, whereby the products of our great West may be